The President's National Infrastructure Advisory Council (NIAC) is the only executive council that examines cross-sector critical infrastructure security and resilience issues and provides recommendations to the President on how to keep the nation's infrastructure safe. The Council consists of up to 30 senior executives from across the critical infrastructure sectors who volunteer their time to examine these serious issues for the President. The Council's representation from the different sectors and levels of government enable it to effectively identify cross-sector risks and ways to address them.
