

Interagency Security Committee Stakeholders,

Today Interagency Security Committee (ISC) members commemorate the 25th Anniversary of the creation of the ISC. On October 19, 1995, six months after the Oklahoma City bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, Executive Order 12977 created the ISC to address continuing government-wide security for federal facilities.

Since 1995, the ISC has grown by over 200% increasing from 21 original members to 64 today. Membership includes those headquartered in Washington D.C. and across the country expanding to include members of the legislative and judicial branches. Beginning in 2019, executive branch departments and agencies are required to report compliance with ISC policies and standards, a major milestone towards meeting the one remaining requirement of E.O. 12977. In addition, more than 40,000 virtual and instructor-led ISC trainings completed to date across the country including ISC members, non-members as well as state and local officials.

The ISC would like to thank our members past, present, and future who continuously give of their time and expertise, in addition to their day jobs to make the ISC a top-tier collaborative forum producing risk management resources that empower departments and agencies to make defensible, risk-based, resource-informed decisions that enhance security and protection across the federal community.

Very Respectfully,
Daryle
